

ISLAND FACES

Bailey-Matthews National Shell Museum holds beach clean up

Last Thursday, the Bailey-Matthews National Shell held a beach clean up from 7 to 9 a.m. on Busche Beach in Fort Myers for World Oceans Day. Most of the trash that was picked up was cigarette butts and single-use plastic.

PHOTOS BY ASHLEY GOODMAN

ABOVE LEFT: Theresa Sutton, Evan Sutton, Leah Sutton and Mike Sutton who are vacationing from Highlands, Illinois, pick up trash along the shore.

ABOVE RIGHT: Stefanie Wolf, a marine biologist from the Bailey-Matthews National Shell Museum takes part in the clean up.

FAR LEFT: Joan Kearney and Meg Soott fill up bags of plastic.

LEFT TOP: Dorrie Hipschman executive director of the Bailey-Matthews National Shell Museum and Pam Boynton.

LEFT BOTTOM: Liz Lisaluis collects shells along the way.